REMARKS

50X1-HUM

1. On 4 May 1951, the tanks previously observed in the yard of the Flak Kaserne, Halle (M 52/D 92)-Koernitz, were no longer seen, but the majority of the troops stationed there seemed to be still in their quarters. Motor vehicles were observed at the installation on 5 May.

50X1-HUM

2. Two truck convoys left the Fliegerhorst Kaserne at about 10 a.m. on 5 May. The first convoy consisted of 50 trucks which were not occupied by troops, but towed 10 to 12 x 76.2-mm AT guns and several field kitchens. The truck drivers wore red-bordered black epaulets. Officers were seen in the driver's cabs of many trucks.

They moved toward the Brandberge on the northwestern perimeter of Halle and may have proceeded via Giebichenstein (M 52/D 93).

The second convoy consisted of about 200 trucks, some of which towed 3 ZIS AT guns; ambulances; field kitchens; and 12 armored reconnaissance cars.

Since each truck carried from 15 to 20 soldiers with red-bordered black epaulets, the total number of troops with the convoy was about 2,000. The convoy moved along Saarbrueckerstrasse toward Giebichenstein.

After the two truck convoys left the installation, the Fliegerhorst Kaserne was occupied by only a rear unit. *
